In addition, if Distributor or any Distributor Invoiced Recipients is required by applicable law to deduct or withhold any such tax, charge or assessment from the amounts due Nasdaq, then such amounts due shall be increased so that the net amount actually received by Nasdaq after the deduction or withholding of any such tax, charge or assessment, will equal one hundred percent (100%) of the charges that are owed.

The grace period begins on the due date of the original usage report, but is extended to the next business day if the last day of the grace period coincides with a market holiday or weekend day. Nasdaq will not provide Distributor with back credits for original or revised reporting received after the end of the grace period. Revised reporting could include, but is not limited to, reclassification of Recipients, reporting of usage under alternative pricing structures and correction of errors by Distributor. This Section 6 does not limit Distributor's liability to Nasdaq for underreporting of usage.

9.2 If Distributor's payment of fees for Information is fixed, Nasdaq will, in lieu of a Compliance Review, request relevant information or documentation related to Distributor's use of the Information; provided, however, that Nasdaq shall retain the right, with reasonable notice to Distributor, during normal business hours, to conduct a Compliance Review on a confidential basis of any relevant documentation of Distributor to ensure that Distributor's use of the Information conforms to the Nasdaq Requirements. Such Compliance Review may only take place once per calendar year and only if such Compliance Review is deemed reasonably necessary by Nasdaq due to suspected non-compliance by Distributor with the material provisions of this Agreement.

9.3 Nasdaq reserves the right to correct any underreporting, underpayment or other financial non-compliance with the Nasdaq Requirements for periods after the end of the review period identified in the engagement letter until Distributor has remediated all of its underreporting, underpayment or other financial non-compliance.
